THIS new binding is grained with a basket weave design which, as shown in the illustration, extends over most of the front, as well as the entire back cover. The highly finished calf leather, dark brown in color, combined with the unusual basket weave grain, gives these volumes a striking and rich effect.

The button-clasp keeps the volumes tightly closed and preserves their shapeliness. The covers, which are slightly overlapping, are lined with brown imitation silk. All styles are the Authorized or King James Version, and are printed on the famous Oxford India paper. Each contains six beautifully colored maps.

ART

NEW DIMENSIONS

THE DECORATIVE ARTS OF TODAY IN WORDS AND PICTURES

By PAUL T. FRANKL

One of the most astonishing things that has happened in America recently is the sudden wildfire growth of interest in modern decoration. The numerous current exhibitions in stores and shops all over the country, and the recent changes in the style of window displays and advertising are only the more obvious evidences of this growth. With it has come a great demand for information concerning the aims and meaning of the modern movement in the decorative arts. It is to supply this information that Mr. Frankl, who is America's foremost exponent of modern decorative art and furniture design, has written this book.

It contains chapters on What is Modern, Basic Principles in Modern Decoration, Modern Furniture, Modern Lighting, American City Architecture, Modern Art in Business, etc. Mr. Frankl has answered every possible question about the subject and has illustrated the answers with over a hundred pictures which are in themselves a lucid presentation of the case for modern methods and ideals.

TOWARDS A NEW CITY

By LE CORBUSIER

Translated by Frederick Etchells

Just as Le Corbusier in his earlier and very controversial work, TOWARDS A NEW ARCHITECTURE formulated the proposition that "The house is a machine for living in," so in this new book he argues that "The city is a machine for working in." He considers fearlessly and in his dynamic way the problems of light, air, traffic and expansion in the modern skyscraper city, and for each problem offers definite and logical, if unconventional, solutions which are remedial or preventive, never merely palliative. His plans are not more costly than subways, they entail reapportionment of land and readjustment but not depreciation of land values. Just as TOWARDS A NEW ARCHITECTURE was acclaimed by the radicals and shouted down by the reactionaries, so TOWARDS A NEW CITY is sure to be welcomed by all but the less far-sighted real-estate owners.

These questions are vital, however, not only to owners of land, architects, engineers and municipal authorities, but to all city-dwellers and workers, for it is only by the general understanding and application of some such dauntless plan as Le Corbusier's that we shall be able to dig ourselves out of our dark chaos into the sun and air, which are essential to the public health and happiness.

MODERN EUROPEAN ARCHITECTURE

It is freely admitted that of all specifically "Modern" artistic developments modern architecture is one of the most interesting. The Town Hall at Stockholm is widely known as combining with wonderful success the modern spirit with a respect for historical tradition; but this is one example only of a mass of fine modern work scattered throughout Europe. Several monographs have been devoted to twentieth century architecture in various specific countries—for instance, in Sweden, in Denmark, and in Holland; but here, in one volume, on 150 full-page plates, reproduced in halftone from specially taken photographs, a carefully chosen selection is given of the finest examples of this work throughout Europe.

BIOGRAPHY AND MEMOIRS

THE AMAZING LIFE OF JOHN LAW

THE MAN BEHIND THE MISSISSIPPI BUBBLE

By GEORGES OUDARD

The Mississippi Bubble was the most famous financial failure of history, outranking in its far-reaching ruin any economic crisis of this or any former generation. But of the man behind the Mississippi Bubble, the Scotchman who sacrificed his whole life to his dream of the establishment of a State Bank, who forced the acceptance of paper money, founded New Orleans, and sailed to success and destruction in a huge financial balloon inflated entirely by himself, almost nothing is generally known. Even among bankers he has been overlooked, yet he founded the modern methods of high finance. His dream became a fact, and has endured as the foundation for the elaborate economic structure of the world today. He was the father of all promoters, the first to capitalize prospective earnings in the Wall Street way.

Georges Oudard, although less well-known than Maurois and Francis Carco, belongs to the same school of biographers. He surpasses them in that he discovers romance in fact. In the life of John Law there is no lack of romance to hand, and Monsieur Oudard has developed his material into a splendid and vital book.

HEADING FOR THE ABYSS

Reminiscences by PRINCE LICHNOWSKY

German Ambassador to England, 1912-1914

About once a decade there is given to the world some work of such astonishing and moving implication as to change the course of thought. Such a book is this by Prince Lichnowsky, who knew, probably better than any other person, the inner history of the beginning of the World War, and chose to tell the whole truth. Far from sparing his own country he has brought documentary proof to bear on her direct guilt, quoted his own warning correspondence to the Imperial German Government, and declared his conviction that Germany's mistaken policy was the root cause of the world calamity.

Prince Lichnowsky's personal and political eminence and his uncompromising attitude make this book one of the most important political documents of modern times.

THE UNPLEASANTNESS AT THE BELLONA CLUB

By DOROTHY L. SAYERS
Author of Cloud of Witness, The Dawson Pedigree, etc.

"Waiter take that man out, he has been dead for two days!"

When George Fentiman repeated this old joke because he felt that it described the subdued and morgue-like atmosphere of the Bellona Club, he did not guess that his uncle, sitting quietly in a chair by the fire, had been dead for hours. How many hours? The disposition of half a million pounds depended upon the answer. Lord Peter Wimsey was called in, but each time he thought he had discovered it, a new difficulty arose. In his own words, "it doesn't come right in the middle, like sums in school when you've cribbed the answer from the back of the book."

From one thrilling step to the next, Lord Peter worked out the whole problem at last, though in the process he uncovered fraud, crime and broken faith, unguessed at first. In the readers' regard, Lord Peter Wimsey may well supplant Sherlock Holmes.

THE CLOWN PRINCE

By MAURICE DEKOBRA
Translated by Neal Wainwright

A rollicking extravaganza by Europe's most popular novelist.

This story recounts in a burlesque vein, shot through with satire and a sort of rushing whimsicality, the Parisian exploits of a prince of the imaginary Kingdom of Phrygia, who, like many an actual scion of foreign royalty in Paris, becomes the storm centre of all kinds of political imbroglios. The predicaments of the French writer caught willy-nilly in the meshes of ferocious Phrygian intrigue and an equally entangling amatory adventure are preposterously hilarious and reveal a capacity for bubbling fun new to Dekobra. In this book the French novelist has let himself go in a holiday mood of sheer exuberance and good spirits.

THE YOUNG RUSSIANS

Messrs. Payson & Clarke Ltd. are introducing with THE NAKED YEAR the works of some of the more important Russian authors who have been living and writing in Russia since the Revolution. The books have been selected by the Editor of the series, Mr. George Soloveytchik, as the works best fitted, because of their literary qualities and their non-propagandist attitude, to convey to the outside world a true picture of life in the midst of a social and political experiment as tremendous and as far reaching in its implications as the French Revolution. There is a General Introduction to the series by Prince Mirsky, Lecturer in Russian Literature at King's College, London, and Mr. Soloveytchik will contribute a Preface to each of the volumes.

THE NAKED YEAR

By BORIS PILNIAK

Translated by Alec Brown

This novel is the acknowledged masterpiece of Boris Pilniak, which is the pseudonym of Boris Andreevich Wogau who was born in 1894 of Russian and German descent. Upon its publication in Russia in 1922 it created an immediate sensation because of its new, non-narrative form and its audacious handling of subjects which, as a rule, are only lightly touched upon in novels. In fact, the book is not, properly speaking, a novel at all, but a projection of the Russian people during the famine year of 1921 and Russia, greater than all her people, is really the chief protagonist of the drama.

There is horror in the book and famine; that could not be otherwise, but it is not the ghastly horror of the newspaper accounts. In THE NAKED YEAR we see Russia surviving the disaster and, in spite of all, the book has, in a deep and unconventional sense, a happy ending.

THE DIARY OF A COMMUNIST SCHOOLBOY

By N. OGNYOV

Translated by Alexander Werth

This purports to be a year's diary kept by a Russian schoolboy of fourteen. It is, in fact, the work of perhaps the most important modern Russian author, as yet completely unknown outside his own country.

The boy, being fourteen, and therefore having been born only four years before the inauguration of the Bolshevik regime, knows nothing except this extraordinary new society. He cannot compare or contrast. To him, Russia under Communism is the one civilized country and all the outside world is a mass of barbarians.

We get an extraordinary, vivid picture of a world infinitely more fantastic than any picture by Doyle of millions of years ago or by Wells of thousands of years hence. At the same time, this is not a picture of an imaginary world but of a world of our own time. The picture carries complete conviction—is intensely real.

Arnold Bennett said of this book: "It is simply all plums . . . an important book . . . continuously interesting."

YOUNG FAMILY

By ROBERT HYDE

This is a story of a young father with preconceived ideas, and of a young mother with experience, and of their exhausting pleasures together. When children enter the book they enter it casually, as in real life. They are the by-product of the home.

While Benjamin's case is special, in that he comes by his family ready-made (Louise at twenty-five has been married before and has three children) the only difference between the bulk of his problems and those of every other father is that he has had no gradual breaking-in. His astonishment at the complexity of married life is delightful.

Mr. Hyde, whose first novel CRUDE was so well received, is a young husband writing, about young husbands and wives, a book which is irresistible and not without pathos for each of these, and a book which will make other ages laugh indulgently.

THE MISSING PARTNERS

By HENRY WADE

Last year in THE VERDICT OF YOU ALL, Henry Wade delighted his readers with an ending which was really unusual and new. In THE MISSING PARTNERS he has achieved a better story, compact of excitement and cheerful sleuthing that remains unguessable until the author chooses to reveal it. Devious plotting and careful planning, unexpected explosive revelations and new developments make of this story an exceptionally tantalizing problem for the seasoned reader of detective fiction.

LESS THAN KIND

By SAMUEL ROGERS

Occasionally a character in a book stands out arrestingly from the great mass of fictional personalities, as a little truer and a little more appealing than usual. Vincent Raymer in LESS THAN KIND is such a character. He is of that helpless, dependent type so apt to arouse the maternal instinct in some woman and spend the rest of his life under her autocratic protection—if he is lucky. Vincent Raymer was not lucky, for the woman on whom he depended was his sister. The sister married, and afterward she preferred to spend her time with her husband, rather than with her brother. Writing simply and directly of the turgid emotional current of the boy's life, Mr. Rogers has preserved the poignance of his inevitable tragedy. He has chosen the surroundings he knows best, those of the University town, and has told his story sympathetically and clearly.

Those who enjoyed THE SOMBRE FLAME will find this new novel a distinct advance over the first, and an indication of a developing talent and power in its author.

GENERAL

It is the happy lot of the publisher to entertain from time to time a manuscript which because of its inherent significance or its literary importance he feels to have a special and perhaps a permanent value for the world, but which he also feels is not likely to appeal in the first instance to the wider reading public. Messrs. Payson & Clarke Ltd. propose to mark such of their works as seem to possess these attributes with the device shown above, a symbol of the Two Rivers of Manhattan. The first editions of these books will be small and will be distinguished from subsequent editions by exceptional physical qualities. USEFUL KNOWLEDGE is the first of the Two Rivers books which Messrs. Payson & Clarke Ltd. have the honour to publish.

USEFUL KNOWLEDGE

By GERTRUDE STEIN

Writing about Americans comes to be very much what is natural to any one thinking that it is pleasant to be one.

America is interesting because they will come to like a pleasant thing as they have come to be one. And every little helps.

And Useful Knowledge has been put together from every little that helps to be American. Once in talking and saying that in America the best material is used in the cheapest things because the cheapest things have to be made of the best material to make them worth while making it, it is really that it has come to be a romantic thing that has been so added to the history of living for a whole generation. It is. Romance is everything and the very best material should make the cheapest thing is making into living the romance of human being.

This is the American something that makes romance everything. And romance is Useful Knowledge.

Useful Knowledge is pleasant and, therefore, it is very much to be enjoyed. When there are many Americans and there are there is a great deal of pleasure in knowing that not only do they differ from one another but that Iowa and California are very pleasant and very different from one another.

And then this further, when they are altogether and ten years older and ten years younger they own the earth just as pleasantly as ever. It is nice to own the earth just as pleasantly as ever and to have Iowa and California and New York and Florida be different from one another.

Any one wishing to add a state can add one.

THE TRUTH BEHIND THE NEWS, 1918-1928

By GEORGE SELDES

In spite of the efforts made by most newspaper editors to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, the public is coming to realize that what lies behind what is offered as news must be guessed at. With a growing reputation for superlative luck and a racy aptitude for story telling, George Seldes has gone from Moscow to Rome, to Mexico and to a hundred other places to get stories for his papers. They were good stories, newsy stories, but often the best part was censored and either could not be sent at all, or was unwillingly discarded by his editors as being too dangerous for publication. Mr. Seldes has gathered all of this material, together with his own stories of how he managed to send through much censored material, into an honest, authoritative, personal story of one of the best news scouts of today. Daring, keen judgment, and a supreme disregard of fatigue have gone into the collection of the material for this book.

HISTORY

1918-1928: A SHORT HISTORY OF THE WORLD

By C. DELISLE BURNS, author of Political Ideals, etc., etc.

For the tenth time, on November 11th of 1928, the world will celebrate the close of a war which will always stand in the Book of Records as the crowning example of human folly. Whatever may have been the economic, financial, political and personal causes which produced that war, it remains true that if the great majority of the warring peoples had had genuine knowledge, it could never have been. If we are to be saved from even worse things in the future we can be saved by knowledge alone. The publication, on the tenth Armistice Day, of a Book which would help to give that knowledge should be a celebration both fitting and valuable. One only has to recall that events since 1918 include the establishment of the Soviet Government, the disturbances in China, the constructive efforts for peace in the Naval Disarmament Conference at Washington, and the Locarno Treaties, to realize how important it is that the events of the last ten years should be reviewed in orderly progression. Mr. Delisle Burns is an historian of eminence, with an unrivalled gift for lucid exposition.

NABOTH'S VINEYARD

By SUMNER WELLES

This book is an historical survey of the Dominican Republic from the time of the French Revolution until the time of the Evacuation of the American Forces of Occupation in 1924. It presents an authoritative analysis of the policy of the United States in the Caribbean throughout that period. The work, which was conceived during the period of the author's service as American Commissioner in the Dominican Republic from 1922 to 1925, is based very largely upon hitherto unpublished archives of the American Department of State, and information obtained by him from various personages in the Dominican Republic who have had a large share in public affairs in Santo Domingo during the past forty years.

Mr. Welles, who was formerly Chief of the Latin-American Division of the Department of State, speaks of the affairs of this region with an authority which probably no other man could bring to his subject. In those parts of the book in which he considers our whole policy and procedure respecting the Dominican Republic in their bearing on our relations to Latin-America as a whole, he does not mince words and indicates what policy he thinks should be consistently maintained by our Government towards Latin-America. These chapters undoubtedly will arouse a controversy not likely to benefit those persons who may challenge Mr. Welles' views.

POETRY AND PLAYS

THREE PLAYS

By H. R. LENORMAND

With an introduction by Ashley Dukes

M. Lenormand is one of the most remarkable figures in contemporary drama. He has done an astonishing thing; building on the work of Jung and Freud, he has used the modern theories of the unconscious as the basis for a series of prose dramas, through which sweeps the spirit of Elizabethan dramatic poetry. For sheer dramatic force he is probably unique among the dramatists of the day; and his plays are as impressive in the study as in the theatre. He is here introduced to American readers through the medium of three of his most characteristic dramas—THE COWARD, a pitiful wartime drama of a Frenchman who flees to Switzerland to escape service; THE DREAM DOCTOR, an extraordinary play, the action of which centres in a passage from Oedipus Tyrannus; and lastly, MAN AND HIS PHANTOMS, perhaps the most powerful of the three—a re-statement of the Don Juan legend in terms of modern psychology.

TRISTAN IN BRITTANY

Being the Fragments of the Romance of Tristan written in the XIIth Century by Thomas the Englishman, drawn out of the French into the English by Dorothy Leigh Sayers, M.A., sometime Scholar of Somerville College, Oxford

The present "Roman de Tristan" or "Tristan in Brittany" follows the older form of the tale closely. It is one of the finest of the mediaeval love romances, far surpassing in story value and poetic feeling its Middle English counterpart.

Miss Sayers' translation is in every way excellent. She manages to retain the engaging rhythm of the old French, and to keep the story clear and easily understandable without losing the flavour of XIIth Century romanticism, or the quaintness of its language.

Translated with Introduction and historical annotations by ACHMED ABDULLAH

Preface by Hervey Allen

"Impressions of all that Central Asian scattering and queer, sudden converging of line and colour, wholly without set design and wholly without evident logic or purpose—therefore the opposite of Europe where life, civilization, culture, call it what you will, is rather like a problem in abstract dynamics—and yet throbs with the grand rhythm of a distinct racial elegy"—this from Mr. Abdullah's introduction best defines this exotic book.

There is in it a sense of brutality, of bravado, of sensuousness; a freshness and fierceness new and startling to us who dwell in machine-made cities. Mr. Abdullah, a native of Afghanistan, long resident in the United States, has a wide public here and in Europe as a novelist and short story writer. It will be a new pleasure for his readers to find him in the guise of philologist and scholar, and perhaps to trace in these translations some of the origins of those qualities both of invention and colour that have so distinguished his popular work.

TYPOGRAPHY

A HISTORY OF THE OLD ENGLISH LETTER FOUNDRIES

By TALBOT BAINES REED

A new, revised and augmented edition, edited by A. F. Johnson and Stanley Morison.

The standard work on the history of English type-founding was published by the late Talbot Baines Reed in 1887. It has been long out of print, but still remains of permanent value. A considerable amount of new material has come to light during the forty years which have elapsed since its original appearance, and the recent researches of Mr. D. B. Updike, Mr. Stanley Morison and others have rendered obsolete a number of Mr. Reed's chapters. This new edition is being prepared by Mr. A. F. Johnson of the British Museum, already well known for several valuable typographical studies which have appeared in THE FLEURON and elsewhere. Mr. Stanley Morison's help has also been enlisted.

In number, interest and care of execution the illustrations will greatly surpass those of the original edition. No pains have been spared to present the volume in a dress befitting what cannot fail to be the only inclusive book on its subject.

Two volumes. Edition limited to 500 copies for sale, of which 250 copies are for the United States of America. Fully illustrated. Price probably $25.00.

HYMNALS AND SONG BOOKS

Lift Up Your Hearts. A Service Book for Use in Hospitals and Similar Institutions. Edited by Anton T. Boisen, Chaplain of the Worcester State Hospital, Worcester, Mass. This hymnal aims to bring comfort, confidence, and courage to those who are mentally and physically ill. The editor consulted with psychiatrists, musicians, and clergymen, and the hymnal, therefore, not only represents his individual judgment but the judgment of those who speak with authority in each of these fields. $20.00 per 100 copies, plus expressage; single copies, 25 cents.

The Pilgrim Hymnal. The years of service which it has seen have tested and approved the merits of the Pilgrim Hymnal plan. There have been, however, many changes made to improve the hymnal in every respect that experience has shown desirable. A careful inquiry has been made among the many churches using the former edition of the book and the results of these criticisms, favorable and adverse, appear in this revision. The book will prove a wonderful aid to a revived and enriched devotional service. The Pilgrim Hymnal contains 713 hymns and chants, 127 pages of Responsive Readings, and other aids to worship, and 34 pages of indices. The printed page is wonderfully clear and legible. It is printed from an entirely new font of type, cut especially for it, thus enabling the use of one size larger

WEYMOUTH, RICHARD FRANCIS—Revised Edition

The Modern Speech New Testament. 1924 Edition. Completely revised and printed from new type.

Modern English translations of the New Testament have been criticised as too colloquial and undignified, or as too harshly literal. Dr. Weymouth's famous version avoids these pitfalls. While thoroughly modern in diction and phrasing, it is a dignified and worthy vehicle of the thoughts of the New Testament writers.

This new edition has been revised by Rev. S. W. Green, author of many of the articles in Hastings' One Volume Bible Dictionary; Rev. Prof. A. J. D. Farrar, of Regents Park College; and Prof. H. T. Andrews, one of the contributors to Peake's One Volume Bible Commentary. The publication of this revised edition is a notable event in contemporary Biblical scholarship.

Course in Isaac Pitman Shorthand. Latest Revised Edition—"New Era." Adopted by the New York Board of Education.
192 pages, cloth, $1.60.

In this work Isaac Pitman Shorthand is presented in twenty simple lessons. The arrangement of the principles is such that real business dictation is possible from the first lessons.

The Course is supplemented by fifty up-to-date business letters and many pages of literary selections in engraved shorthand. Suggestive phrases, complete lists of Wordsigns and Contractions, together with contractions for the principal cities, afford an easy reference for the student.

This new text enables the average student to acquire a complete mastery of shorthand in the shortest time without sacrificing any of the completeness of Isaac Pitman Shorthand.

Key to "Course." Cloth, 70c.

The "Key" contains the shorthand notes of all longhand exercises and the transcript of all shorthand exercises in the "Course."

Supplementary Exercises in Isaac Pitman Shorthand. Adopted by the New York Board of Education.

Book II, limp cloth, Lessons 12-20, 85 pages, 75c.
The two books bound in one volume, full cloth $1.25.

These exercises are arranged in lessons in accordance with the "Course." Each lesson consists of exercises of words, sentences, paragraphs, and business letters in longhand for dictation practice and similar exercises in engraved shorthand for reading and copying practice.

Each lesson provides a review of the material in the corresponding lesson in the instruction book. The word exercises are so arranged that groups of words can conveniently be selected for drill on some specific principle. The sentence, paragraph, and letter exercises provide a thorough drill on the entire lesson as a unit.

Supplementary Exercises is in itself a complete dictation course, containing more than 100 business letters and business paragraphs and more than 400 sentences selected from business correspondence of all kinds.

It is not only a handbook for use during the theory course, but is of even greater value to review the principles of the system as an introduction to speed dictation.

Correspondence Course in Pitman Shorthand. A series of 20 lessons printed in loose-leaf form, each lesson separate, and sold in sets in stout envelopes. $1.75 net.

Prepared by expert teachers in Pitman's Schools for self-tuition or for use through Correspondence Course Schools. To be used in conjunction with the standard textbook—"New Era Course." The Expert Dictator. By CONRAD J. SAPHIER and THOMAS J. SMYTH. Adopted by the New York Board of Education.
392 pages, cloth, $2.00.

This work presents a new departure from the accustomed make-up of a dictation book. This work is intended for the student who has completed the theory and is ready for actual dictation practice.

A mental picture of the correct shorthand outline instantaneously transfers itself from the mind to the hand. With that end in view, every rule is presented in such a way that the student may thoroughly master each principle. In addition, exhaustive lists of engraved shorthand outlines are given in the lessons, and in the margins adjoining the dictation material, together with an additional vocabulary at the end of the book, so as to enable the student to acquire a very extensive knowledge of words and phrases so essential to one in quest of speed.

The "Expert Dictator" presents the following unusual and interesting features: (a) A combination, in one volume, of a dictation book, supplemented by questions covering innumerable subjects of practical interest. (b) A large number of up-to-date business letters, as well as literary articles systematically arranged and proportioned, so as to allow sufficient dictation material for the average daily recitation period. (c) A complete discussion of all the important principles of the system. (d) A review of word-signs, contractions, and phrases, coupled with special word drills.

One-Session Dictation Book. 64 pages, 30c.
This book is intended for dictation purposes in classes where theory and speed are combined. The matter, which is in the form of commercial letters, is divided into eight sections, each section dealing with three or four principles. The letters are carefully graded from the students' point of view, but not obviously so. The matter is counted in tens, and as the actual number of words is given after each division of ten, the teacher is enabled to read, with the minimum of trouble, at any desired speed. A list of the grammalogues used is given before each section.

264 pages, cloth, ††$2.25.

The desire of every ambitious stenographer is "to sit in the reporter's chair" in court, and to reach the object of his ambition it is absolutely necessary that he familiarize himself not only with the best methods of acquiring speed and accuracy, but the forms, technical practice, and procedure of the court room. This can be done only in two ways: by slowly and laboriously learning through the few opportunities for practice work that present themselves from time to time, or to profit from the experiences of others.

TYPEWRITING

A Practical Course in Touch Typewriting. By CHARLES E. SMITH. Adopted by the New York, Boston, Baltimore (Md.), Milwaukee (Wis.), Newark (N. J.), Trenton (N.J.), Boards of Education. Also by the California State Board of Education.
Published in three editions: Stiff paper cover, 120 pages, $1.00.
Cloth cover, 120 pages, $1.35.
High School Edition, 208 pages, $1.60.
The Sixteenth edition, greatly enlarged and completely re-written, is more than an enlargement or a revision. It is a new book. The work is presented in the most instructive and teachable manner, and has won the commendation of the World's Greatest Typists and typewriting teachers everywhere. All world's typing records for both speed and accuracy are held by typists who studied from "A Practical Course in Touch Typewriting." It has justly been called the typewriting method of the Champions. A special edition of the complete volume has been issued, using the method of fingering in which "B" is struck with the left hand.

Pitman's Loose-Leaf Typewriting Exercises. Revised Edition including Regents' Tests. By LOUISE MCKEE. Adopted by the New York, Philadelphia, Rochester (N.Y.), Milwaukee (Wis.) Boards of Education, Temple University, Philadelphia, etc.
On cardboard, 50 cards, $1.50 a set.
The unique form for these Supplementary Typewriting Exercises was chosen with two ends in view—
(1) To provide new material for the teaching of Transcription and Tabulation which the teacher knows has never been seen by the pupils.
(2) To furnish models for both of these types of work to be studied by the pupils after they have completed their work—models by which they can correct their own errors. In large classes it is impossible for the teacher to give that close inspection necessary to catch every error on every paper, and, heretofore, it has been equally impossible to place before the pupils the perfect model of the work they have attempted to do.

High Speed in Typewriting. By A. M. KENNEDY and FRED JARRETT. Adopted by the New York Board of Education, California State Board of Education, Pittsburg, (Pa.) Board of Education, and Indiana State Normal School. 108 pages, cloth, $1.25.
Complete in Fifty Lessons. Each lesson is divided into four exercises. The fourth exercise of each of the fifty lessons is graded in such a way that the operator commences the work at a speed of 4.7 strokes per second, or 50 words in the minute; and finishes the fiftieth lesson with a speed of 9.3 strokes per second, or 102 words a minute.
The use of "High Speed in Typewriting" will develop an unusual degree of typewriting skill.

Artistic Leather Craft. By HERBERT TURNER. Recommended by the American Library Association.

120 pages, 5½ in. by 8½ in., with numerous illustrations, cloth, $1.50

A Practical Craft for Trade and Domestic Training Classes, Milliners, Dressmakers, and the Home Worker.

This book contains an organized course of instruction in the making of artificial flowers from many kinds of material. Most of the artificial flowers for sale in shops are made from specially prepared materials that can be obtained only by those in the trade. The craft of artificial flower making, explained in this book, differs especially from the shop industry in that the worker builds the flower completely herself, making everything of which it is composed.

Artificial Silk: Its Manufacture and Uses. By THOMAS WOODHOUSE. Adopted by the Boston Board of Education. 150 pages, cloth, $2.00.

There is to-day scarcely any limit to the variety and beauty of the textures that can be produced in artificial silk, and this new work gives an excellent description of the remarkable progress that has been made in both the manufacture and uses of the fabric during the past few years. Very little authoritative information on the subject has hitherto been available, the secrets of the various manufacturing processes having been most carefully guarded. Latterly, however, the veil has been lifted to some extent, and this extremely interesting guide for the general reader can be confidently recommended. The latest developments are fully explained in non-technical language, and a feature of the work is the number and variety of the illustrations.

"Gives a comprehensive survey not only of the uses and processes of modern rayon, but also of its colorful history . . . the methods of manufacture are exhaustively treated, and these clearly-written descriptions, in conjunction with the historical data already mentioned, provide a very valuable book."—American Silk Journal (New York).

"A very complete work . . . lengthy and involved discussions are avoided, and the language is sufficiently non-technical to permit of easy reading and correct interpretations."—Textile World (New York).

The sections into which the book is divided cover adequately the whole ground over which the pastel-painter is likely to travel, and the illustrations deserve high praise for their artistic merit and quality.

The many inquiries received for a comprehensive book on cardboard modelling for schools have been a sure indication of the need that is felt for a new work such as has been compiled by Messrs. Dixon and Browning. The books have been carefully planned, and are not merely a haphazard collection of odds and ends that may be made in cardboard. For example, the "Evolution of Transport" is carefully worked out, as is also that of Architecture, Costume, etc.

Fashion Drawing and Dress Design. By MABEL L. HALL Size 9½ by 6½ in. 180 pages, with 72 full-page plates, $3.00.

Fashion Drawing and Dress Design has, during comparatively recent years, developed into a highly specialized branch of Art—and, one might add, of Craft—requiring for its successful presentation a careful and scientific training. Highly trained artists in this particular branch of Art are in great demand by the largest clothing and drapery houses, and the demand may be fairly said to exceed the supply. High salaries are earned by artists in fashion drawing and dress design who have combined even moderately good natural artistic gifts with intelligent observation and special training. It is with the object of supplying a scientific and systematic course of instruction in the principles and methods underlying this special branch of Art that this book has been written: not only for the novice who is seeking some definite method of expressing essentials, but also for the trained Art student who wishes to develop along this particular line. The representation of the figure in action and in pose, and the fitting of a garment to an ideal model, have been shown to conform with certain fundamental anatomical facts. In aiming at enabling the student to obtain quickly an adequate comprehension of this art, the author has avoided the introduction of technical details wherever possible, and throughout has kept the instructional matter on the simplest lines. After careful study of this course, and earnest and intelligent practice of its precepts, the student should be able to draw and design fashions from the very simplest to the most elaborate.

It may seem strange that the publishers of that acknowledged "standard" book on lettering, namely Writing, Illuminating and Lettering, by Edward Johnston, should think it advisable to issue another work on the same subject. The explanation is that Mr. Johnston's book is academic in treatment, and unnecessarily exhaustive for the non-craftsman. There are many artists, architects, designers, shopkeepers and others to whom business lettering is necessary but of subsidiary importance, who will welcome this simple and practical treatment.

Boards of Education, New York University, University of Chicago, University of California, Ohio University, University of Santa Clara, University of Michigan, University of Minnesota, Kansas State Teachers' College, etc.*
641 pages, with numerous maps and illus., cloth, $3.00.

This standard text was, in its first edition, recognized to be one of the most complete works on geographical science yet produced. The author has made a substantial revision of the book, bringing the facts and figures right up to the present date, and introducing a quantity of new subject matter and several new maps.

"Is a mine of information, scholarly written, and as a source book for grade and high school teachers it is excellent. Its value as a college text needs no comment."—The Journal of Geography (Chicago).

"This book can be thoroughly recommended to students who are taking an advanced course in economic geography. The various sections contain a wealth of information that is both trustworthy and well arranged."—Journal of Education.

The Language of Advertising. By JOHN B. OPDYCKE, Author of Business Letter Practice. 508 pages, 153 illus., cloth, gilt, $3.50.
This new work constitutes a comprehensive treatment of both the science and the art of advertising in its present-day manifestations. It is calculated for use in the publicity office, in the school and college classroom, and in the copy-writing laboratory. It is never too technical, however, to be of absorbing interest to the general reader. It may be read for entertainment and inspiration quite as much as for information and instruction. It differs from other advertising books on the market chiefly in that it establishes close-up and practicable relationships between advertising and literature, a thesis that no other book on the subject has attempted.

"The author is keen, practical and concise, and he gives reasons for every point emphasized. Whether he is advising and discussing newspaper or magazine or billboard announcements, there is a little philosophical guidance, a touch of pleasant wisdom which makes the whole thing linger in the memory."—New York Times.

"Mr. Opdycke has done more than compile, he has illuminated every page with his own enthusiasm. Here is a book for the blue days that every advertising man knows—the days when ideas simply will not come and words simply will not behave. By which I mean to say that it is a stimulating book, an electric starter that will turn the mental engine over until it (catches) even on the leanest mixture of ideas that a jaded copy man ever tried to run on."—The Mailbag (Cleveland, Ohio).

Principles of Commercial History. By JAMES STEPHENSON, M.A., M.Com., B.Sc. 280 pages, cloth, $2.25.

It is not sufficient for the business man to know merely the routine of his branch of work; he must learn to form an opinion of his own, to be able to judge more exactly the phenomena of modern business life and to draw from the past conclusions concerning the future. This interesting presentation embraces a description of the general economic condition when the country under study first became known; the surplus raw materials grown which could be exchanged for the products of other lands; the prevailing means of communication; the influence of political treaties on the economic life of the people; and the factors which have gradually led to changes in the methods of industry.

English Grammar and Composition. New Edition. By W. JAYNE WESTON, B.Sc. 320 pages, cloth, $1.50.

In this volume the theory of the language is made interesting and is taught with effect by being brought into union with the practice of the language. The book is a manual of Grammar taught through Composition. The writer's object has been not to gather together a set of rules and definitions, unattractive and uninspiring because divorced from practical use, but rather to examine the mechanism of the living English tongue, and to do this so as to arouse intelligent interest in the facts of language.

Synonyms and Antonyms. 140 pages, cloth, 85c.

This is a handy book for the speaker and the writer. It contains a very full list of words with their synonyms and antonyms, arranged in such a form as to be readily referred to when it is necessary to find words of like meaning, or words opposite in sense to any other word.

This work is a veritable epitome of all matters relating to the theatre, and is recognized generally as being a work which cannot easily be dispensed with by anyone interested in the theatre of to-day.

"To those who have had trouble in locating authors of plays they want to produce I always refer to 'Who's Who in the Theatre,' the new edition of which is just out. It contains not only the biographies but their mail addresses."—Leon Edward Joseph in the "New York Herald-Tribune."

"The present is the fifth issue of this invaluable reference work for those having to do with the theatre. Since the first issue appeared in 1912 it has been accepted as a standard work in England, and this country. It is a mine of interesting information for those concerned with the world of the theatre and its people. This biographical record of the contemporary stage shows on the face of it that the compiler has put in a terrific amount of work and research to make of it the invaluable record that it presents, all carefully arranged and completely indexed."—The Boston Globe.

230 pages, copiously illus., cloth, gilt, $1.50.
This book has been planned and written so that it may be an effective and practical Handbook on the League of Nations and at the same time attractive and readable and stimulating.

"The man-in-the-street reading this little handbook will be able to get a good grasp of the meaning of the League, and, what is most important, he will realize that it is now an integral part of man's upward struggle from barbarism."—The Westminster Gazette.

Gilbert, Sullivan and D'Oyly Carte. New Edition. By FRANÇOIS CELLIER and CUNNINGHAM BRIDGEMAN. Size 6 by 8½ in., cloth gilt, 467 pages, illustrated with numerous full-page plates. $6.00.

Anyone who reads back into those days when Gilbert and Sullivan and D'Oyly Carte were as well known personally as their plays are known to-day, must be enthralled first with the story of this amazing partnership, and secondly with the romance of the origin, growth and first production of the plays. The story is full of reminiscences of the things the reader is happy to know about these three Savoyards who, together, did so much for the English Stage. The book is written in happy vein. It conveys the spirit of the times. It is frankly Gilbertian in places, and it has the power to hold the reader's interest from the first page to the last. It is not surprising that a new edition has become necessary to fill the wants of the rising generation of Gilbert and Sullivan worshippers.

"Packed with ideas and suggestions that amateur societies can use."—Theatre World.

"The new volume by Mr. Harold Markham is both comprehensive and extremely sound."—Amateur Stage.

PITMAN'S BUSINESS BOOKS

ADVERTISING, SALESMANSHIP, ETC.

The Language of Advertising. By JOHN OPDYCKE, Author of Business Letter Practice. 506 pages, 153 illus., cloth, gilt, $3.50.

This new work constitutes a comprehensive treatment of both the science and the art of advertising in its present-day manifestations. It is calculated for use in the publicity office, in the school and college classroom, and in the copy-writing laboratory. It is never too technical, however, to be of absorbing interest to the general reader. It may be read for entertainment and inspiration quite as much as for information and instruction. It differs from other advertising books on the market chiefly in that it establishes close-up and practicable relationships between advertising and literature, a thesis that no other book on the subject has attempted. Thoroughly stimulating interpretations of present-day copy specimens, together with novel suggestions for the construction and focusing of copy, make the book invaluable in the hands of the student of advertising. Numerous challenging exercises, a detailed index, a readable style, a profusion of well-pointed illustrations, and—An introduction by Mr. Percy S. Straus, Vice-President of R. H. Macy and Company, Inc., one of the largest and best-known mercantile establishments in America, all go to make this new publication unique and distinguished in its voluminous field.

The book indicates what the average individual may be expected to think and feel in given circumstances; what he will usually like and dislike; what he can be relied upon to respond to; how to influence him and grip his imagination. PHOTOGRAPHY, OPTICS AND LIGHT

Commercial Photography. By D. CHARLES, late Head Photographer to Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co., Ltd. 156 pages, illustrated, cloth, $2.00.

A practical handbook explaining modern methods and appliances or the production of high-grade commercial photographs.

"New books on commercial photography are always welcome, especially since so little of value has been published on the subject in book form, and since those few books are already out of print. The rapid rise to the fore that commercial photography has enjoyed in the last few years has caused many a portrait and amateur photographer to consider seriously this field, and Mr. Charles' effort is therefore particularly timely. He is a practical worker and 'knows his stuff' as the saying goes, and is also well equipped to put his ideas on paper. Knowing how speedily even comparatively large editions of books on commercial photography have been sold out in the past, we advise those of our readers who want this one to order immediately."—The Commercial Photographer (Cleveland, Ohio).

"This work will be very valuable to many a photographer who has been prone to go through the various photographic processes with little or no actual knowledge of what he is actually doing and why. For this reason it should find favour, particularly since there is no modern and up-to-date work which discusses photographic chemistry without involving the reader in a mass of technicalities which speedily leave him at sea."—The Commercial Photographer (Cleveland, Ohio).

Artificial Silk: Its Manufacture and Uses. By THOMAS WOODHOUSE. 150 pages, cloth, $2.00.

There is to-day scarcely any limit to the variety and beauty of the textures that can be produced in artificial silk, and this new work gives an excellent description of the remarkable progress that has been made in both the manufacture and uses of the fabric during the past few years. Very little authoritative information on the subject has hitherto been available, the secrets of the various manufacturing processes having been most carefully guarded. Latterly, however, the veil has been lifted to some extent, and this extremely interesting guide for the general reader can be confidently recommended. The latest developments are fully explained in non-technical language, and a feature of the work is the number and variety of the illustrations.

Petroleum. By ALBERT LIDGETT, Editor of the "Petroleum Times."

A revised and greatly enlarged edition of the volume from the "Common Commodities and Industries" Series.

168 pages, cloth gilt, $1.50.

Though the petroleum industry, as an industry, dates back only some seventy years, the use of oil was well known to the ancients, and there are many references to it in the Bible. But in no sphere of commercial or industrial activity has greater progress been made during recent years than in regard to the multiplication in the uses of petroleum. We live to-day in an age of oil, and petroleum and its products are inseparable from our daily life. Therefore this graphic account of the origin and production of petroleum, of the oil fields of the world, of its refining and transport by land and sea, of the oil shale industry and the modern distillation of petroleum from coal, and of the manifold uses of petroleum as a fuel, is one that must appeal to a very large number of readers. The book has quickly gone into its third edition. Opportunity has been taken to issue the work in a larger form, with many new and striking illustrations, while important additions have been made to the text.

Any of the books described in this catalog will be sent post paid upon receipt of price.

He has selected the most important results, both theoretical and experimental, for careful analysis; has arranged these results and analyses in an orderly manner; and, realizing the influence of experimental work upon design, has added a chapter on the methods of measuring the pressures in the cylinders of high-speed engines. Other chapters deal with the conditions occurring in actual engines, the mechanics of the high-speed engine, and engine balance. The volume collects and classifies very important information that might not otherwise be readily available."—Scientific American (New York).

Add to the Beauty and Convenience of Your Home With

BUILT-IN FURNITURE

The plans and instructions in this new book from Popular Mechanics Press by Edwin M. Love will enable any handy man to build the various pieces described.

Saves Space

Built-In Furniture has many merits. It requires less floor space than equivalent portable cabinets. It can be built exactly to fit the needs of the home owner, and as simply or elaborately as he may wish.

Adaptable to Nooks and Recesses

It is adaptable to odd nooks and recesses which might otherwise be useless blemishes in the room. The design and finish of the interior trim are easily matched.

Useful and Ornamental

No more fascinating or profitable field can be found for the home mechanic than the building in his home of such useful and ornamental cabinets.

Easily Added to Old Houses

Happily, built-in furniture is almost as easily added to an old house as to one no farther advanced than the preliminary sketches.

Simple Construction

In most cases it requires no structural alteration of either walls or floors. As the walls offer support, complicated joints are unnecessary. This makes the construction so simple that any handy man should find it easy to do.

Economy

While stressing the artistic, as well as the useful, the plans make for economy in both materials and time. In all cases stock sizes are specified, and parts are shaped to make use of such sizes.

Complete

The many excellent designs in this book cover almost every conceivable application of the built-in cabinet, including the very latest developments. Each chapter is complete in itself dealing with the building of one piece, so that no time-consuming reference to other chapters is necessary.

Don't Dream—Build!

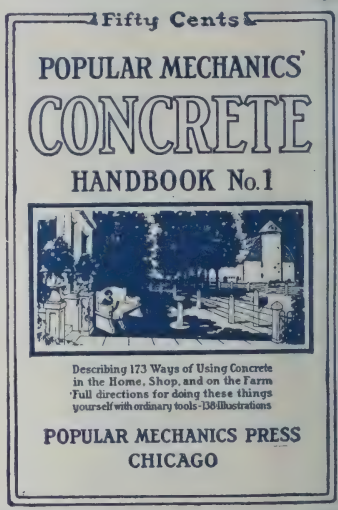
It is a lot of fun to dream and plan, but that doesn't improve your home. You must get busy and BUILD! What has been holding you back? Probably two things. You haven't known just what to build, and you haven't been ready to pay a contractor to do the work for you. Both of these drawbacks are removed by Popular Mechanics Concrete Handbook. In it you will find pictures of the devices you are likely to be able to make use of about your home or your farm. And the pictures are accompanied by directions that will enable you to do the work yourself.

There Are a Hundred Uses for Concrete About Your Home

Besides the more common uses of concrete in building sidewalks, curbs, floors, and foundations, there are dozens of things to be made that will improve your home and lighten the work of caring for it. Perhaps you are in great need right now of one of the following devices which can well be made of concrete with the facilities anyone has on hand.

Table for gas plate
Bird bath
Cistern cap
Safe cement steps
Chimney cap
Toy blocks
Garden seat
Cyclone cellar
Building blocks
Sewer manhole cap
Gate posts
Garbage pail container
Kitchen sink support
Flower boxes
Garden vases
Lawn pedestals
Garden table
Garden pools
Fountain
Fireproof safe



No matter whether you have had experience or not, you can make things from concrete if you have this book. Full directions for making mixers, for building forms, for selecting materials, for finishing jobs with a smooth surface, for improvising necessary tools, and for doing every other part of the work, make it easy for you to get along without professional help.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR THE EXCAVATION OF SARDIS

When making plans for publishing the results of the American excavations at Sardis it was decided that the archeological material was too great in quantity, and too varied in character to permit of its adequate discussion within a single volume or even within two or three. It was therefore decided to issue a number of fascicules, each by a specialist and dealing with a single subject. Several volumes are now in preparation, and the following have already been published.

The Mission of Good Books

THE message above is intended to make every possible buyer of books for boys and girls pause and consider how important it is to provide children with the right kind of reading. It is an inspiration to prompt the buying of good books for boys and girls. The thought of entertainment, amusement and at the same time the thought of building character is appealing.

The Display Screen shown above is in four colors and presents a most attractive appearance. If placed in your window with the richly colored Rand McNally books as a foreground it will do its part in bringing people into your store. They will want to see the books and examine them more closely for content, illustrations, binding and price. A copy of this display will be furnished gratis on request.

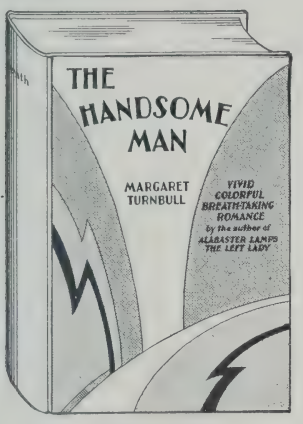
Sales-Winning Book Jackets



The color scheme of "The Handsome Man" jacket is to be in three colors—a rich, bright blue, canary yellow and black. The design is of the curved geometric effect, using flat colors only.

The lettering is in a modern poster effect, similar to the Boul' Mich or Broadway type much in vogue in magazine and newspaper advertising. The lettering on the front of the jacket is to be in black, with reversed lettering in white on a portion of the blue field, for the selling talk.

On the back, this condition is reversed due to the opposite effect of the design on the back of the jacket. This latter feature will lend a greater variety to the design of the jacket.

This is Margaret Turnbull's most engaging novel.

IN those days men went westward in search of adventure. They found it, too. Wild beasts prowled through every glen; the plains were dotted thick with sturdy buffalo. Great stretches of desert tried men's courage, behind every thicket there might be savage Indians, determined to stem the white man's tide.

Sabra Conner, who last year thrilled young and old, and won the high acclaim of editors, librarians and book critics with her first novel, The Quest of the Sea Otter, has chosen this richly romantic setting of the early west for her second book.

If you like to read of high courage, of pioneers who recognize no obstacles to their onward march, then you will find many a thrill in On Sweetwater Trail. Kit Carson, the inspired John C. Fremont, and many others of America's colorful characters, follow through the story.

Here is a book for every age—romantic—swift—adventuresome.

Harbor Lights of Home

THE thousand-dollar title for the new Edgar Guest Book of Verse has been chosen. It is:

Harbor Lights of Home

This title was selected from nearly half a million which Guest admirers suggested. The author of the title, and winner of the $1000 award, is the Rev. Merton S. Rice, pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal Church, Detroit. Fittingly enough, the author lives in Mr. Guest's own city, and is a warm friend of the poet.

Author of The Title

The judges were unanimous in their decision. Here, they said, is a title that typifies the work of Edgar Guest; a title that is richly suggestive of the fine things of life; a title that is easy to say and easy to remember, and entirely original.

Thus has been brought to a close one of the most remarkable events in the history of book publishing. Even those who know Mr. Guest's strong hold on the nation were not prepared for the universal response to this title-naming contest.

Almost 250,000 persons participated, each suggesting at least one title for the book. One enthusiastic young woman sent 189 title suggestions!

250,000 Participated

The contest was conducted through newspapers which print Mr. Guest's poems every day. All were delighted with the results, and many of them declared the contest the most successful they have handled in years. The editor of one paper, a conservative metropolitan daily, said, "I was amazed at the results of the contest, for I had no idea Guest had so strong a hold upon his readers. The class of people who responded was high, and many of our very best people took part."

Newspapers Delighted

For fifteen days during the month of May these papers devoted column after column of space to the contest. Many bookstores made prominent displays of the Guest Books of Verse, and in every section of the country, the poet's name was publicized. Men and women, little children, people of every age and every creed, wrote in glowing tribute to Guest. It was demonstrated fully that he is, indeed, the Poet of the American Home.

Tributes To Guest

The new book, Harbor Lights of Home, will be published August 20, Mr. Guest's forty-second birthday. Thanks to this contest, and the vast interest taken by readers, the book will have an auspicious debut. Indications are that it will have a greater advance sale than any other book of recent times. People everywhere are waiting for it.

Northern Italian Details

Drawings and Photographs by
Walter G. Thomas and John T. Fallon

9½ by 12¼ Inches. 141 Full-Page Plates
Embossed Two-Tone Art Binding. Price $10.00

It is generally conceded by architects that the better-known examples of Italian architecture—in spite of their great charm—have served as "inspiration" to designers until the demand for something less trite is unmistakable. To fulfill this need the authors, both architectural draftsmen and designers of unquestioned ability, were commissioned to visit Northern Italy to collect material lying off the beaten paths. The result of their labors is a compilation of 143 plates of details representing in the main "architectural bits" such as doorways, windows, stairways, paneling, grills, gates, fountains, knockers, lamps, balustrades, pedestals, railings, choir stalls, benches, etc. Each subject is presented by means of photographs, measured and figured drawings and descriptive text.

Third Edition, Revised and Enlarged

Plumbing Questions and Answers

By Joseph E. Taggart
Third Edition, Revised and Enlarged and Entirely Reset

5 by 7 Inches. 160 Pages. Fully Illustrated
Flexible Fabrikoid. Price $2.00

Originally, this work was compiled in response to many requests for an interpretation of the Plumbing Code of the City of New York. These rules have been converted into question and answer form, some with sketches to make their meaning clearer.
The steady sale of the book has exhausted two editions and the continued demand has necessitated the preparation of another edition. This new third edition has been completely revised, considerably enlarged and entirely reset. It has been arranged in four sections: First, the questions and answers based on the code of the City of New York; second, tests for anti-siphon traps, installation of water supply and laws governing its use; third, the standpipe and fire-line rules of 1928; and fourth, an appendix of useful tables, measures and calculations.

Fourth Enlarged Edition

Steel Square Pocket Book

By Dwight L. Stoddard
Fourth Edition, Revised, Enlarged and Entirely Reset

4¼ by 6¼ Inches. 176 Pages. 184 Illustrations
Flexible Fabrikoid. Price $1.00

This concise and handy little book gives the best methods of using the carpenter's steel square and answers nearly every problem likely to come before the practical carpenter. Its compact and handy size makes it convenient to carry in the pocket for quick reference. An important feature which commends it to the carpenter is the absence of reference letters on the illustrations. Instead an exact engraving is given of the square itself laid on the work, showing at a glance all points, lengths and quantities sought. Simple instructions are given for finding the different cuts used in roof framing, stair work, hoppers, towers, etc., also directions for describing polygons, circles, ovals, fascia and frieze cuts and for solving other knotty problems.

Joint Wiping and Lead Work

By William Hutton

5¼ by 7½ Inches. 90 Pages. 116 Illustrations
Full Flexible Fabrikoid. Price $1.00

The author has found by actual experience what to avoid and the best methods to pursue under the varying conditions which arise in the preparation and wiping of joints on all kinds of pipes. He has explained each step as shown in the photographs so the mechanic will have no difficulty in understanding it.

Hick's Builders' Guide

By I. P. Hicks and Joshua C. Duncan

This volume is one of the most popular building books ever published, and covers every operation in the construction or alteration of a building. It solves every problem in building construction from the layout of the site to the completed structure. It also shows how to accurately estimate material and labor for all kinds of work by easy and practical methods. The new edition will be revised and brought up to date by the addition of much new material.

New Edition Preparing

My Automobile
Its Operation, Care and Repair

By Harold F. Blanchard

Every motorist should have a copy of this book, whether he repairs his car or not, as every phase of the motor car is fully covered in its pages. The outstanding feature of the book is the specific, step-by-step directions that it gives for finding and curing troubles. No matter what your trouble may be, open the book at the sympton, and there you will find the causes arranged in the order of their probability. Following the symptons and causes, are the cures. A new revised edition is being prepared.

INTERNATIONAL CRITICAL COMMENTARY on the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments. Planned and for years edited by the late Prof. C. A. BRIGGS, D.D., in America, and Prof. S. R. DRIVER, D.D., and Rev. ALFRED PLUMMER, D.D., in Great Britain.

This Commentary is international and inter-confessional, and is free from polemical and ecclesiastical bias. It is based upon a thorough critical study of the original texts of the Bible, and upon critical methods of interpretation. It is designed chiefly for students and clergymen, and will be written in a compact style. Historical and Archaeological questions, as well as questions of Biblical Theology, are included in the plan of the Commentary, but not Practical or Homiletical Exegesis. The volumes constitute a uniform series.

WORLD POLITICS

THE MASTERY OF THE PACIFIC

Can the British Empire and the United States Agree?

By SIR FRANK FOX

Must the United States and the British Empire come to blows on the question of the policy of these two great powers in the Pacific? Is the great naval program which the United States has laid out for itself actuated by fear of Great Britain?

The problems in the Pacific due to our interests in the Philippines and the Hawaiian Islands become more critical from year to year. Here is a scholarly, clear cut, frank statement of the situation.

THE FEET OF THE YOUNG MEN

Some Candid Comments on the Rising Generation

By "JANITOR"

No mirrors of Downing Street have ever reflected nor has any Gentleman with a Duster ever described with such caustic pen the personalities of the coming figures in British and International politics as has this gentleman who covers up his identity under the pseudonym of "Janitor." There is a lively chapter on Lady Astor. There is a chapter on the other lady M. P.'s, and finally a brilliant chapter in which he gives us his selections of the future greats of England.

PEOPLES AND PROBLEMS OF THE PACIFIC

By J. MacMILLAN BROWN

This comprehensive work affords an enlightening picture of the situation that exists in this vast region, where the great powers of Europe and Asia and ourselves are deeply involved. Americans especially will be interested in reading it on account of the Philippines, Hawaii and other of our possessions in the Pacific. The author is the Chancellor of New Zealand University, and he is a world-wide authority on this subject.

THE PHILIPPINES

A Treasure and a Problem

By NICHOLAS ROOSEVELT

This book devotes itself to a consideration of the important problems in the Philippines which face the people of the United States and their representatives. Mr. Roosevelt spent many months in the Philippines under unusually favorable conditions for observation. Much of the time he was a guest of the Governor General of the islands, Major General Leonard Wood.

This book is an able and skillful presentation of the situation as it now exists in the Philippines.

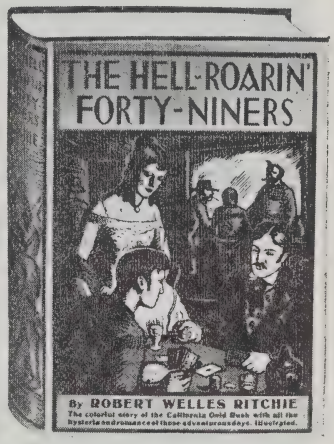
AMERICANA

THE HELL-ROARIN' FORTY-NINERS

The Colorful Story of the California Gold Rush

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE

Illustrated with Contemporary Prints and Old Photographs



This is the vivid story of the most picturesque era in the history of the new world, when thousands trudged forward by foot or by wagon train to the wild new land of California. Where they stopped, towns "mushroomed" over night,—Poker Flat, Brandy City, Rough and Ready, Galena Hill, Downieville, where the beautiful Juanita was hanged by a mob—all hell-roarin' camps.

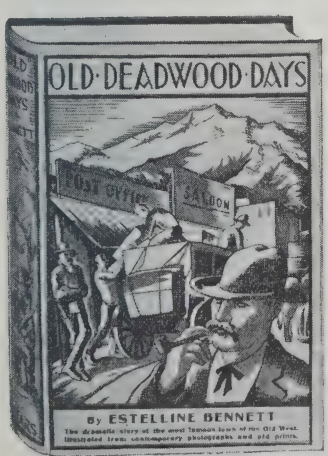
Here is the hysteria and tragedy of highly colored life which Bret Harte so vividly pictured in his immortal stories. This is an authentic book, an invaluable addition to Americana.

Octavo, 298 pages, jacket in colors, Price $3.00

OLD DEADWOOD DAYS

The Dramatic Story of the Most Famous Town of the Old Frontier

By ESTELLINE BENNETT



Illustrated from Contemporary Photographs and Old Prints

The most vivid town of the old wild west in the days of its greatest glory is here recreated by one who lived through those days and witnessed the scenes that loom large in the history of our last frontier. Calamity Jane, Seth Bullock, gamblers, miners, bull whackers, ladies o' love, cross the stage that Miss Bennett has set up in her vivid book and play again their roystering parts just as they played them in life "before the railroad came."

And here is Deadwood with its tragedies, blasted hopes, its raw drama, and the romance of the Old West.

MEMORIES

Being the Sporting Reminiscences of a Gallant Gentleman

By HARRY PRESTON

No event of the English sporting world is ever complete without having Harry Preston prominently identified with it. He is the impressario of the great boxing bouts, of sporting charity events and benefits, and the boniface of a large hotel. He is the friend of Princes and the Prince of friends. We see him dining at St. James with the Prince of Wales, and at other times with Sir James Barrie, with E. V. Lucas and with those prominent in sports, literary and artistic life. His story is molded by a happy philosophy of a man who looks on life with a smile and a stout heart.

Octavo, 288 pages, profusely illustrated, Price $5.00

AN EMPRESS IN EXILE

My Days in Doorn

By EMPRESS HERMINE

This is the story of life behind the scenes at Doorn, told by the Empress Hermine. It depicts vividly in a homely, sympathetic fashion the daily life of the ex-Kaiser, the Empress and her children. She tells of their interests, their recreations, their pleasures, their social life, the domestic round of the day. Without political significance, this is the first book to give an actual picture of the life at Doorn.

Octavo, 310 pages, illustrated, Price $5.00

LEST I FORGET

By CYRIL MAUDE

The charm of that delectable old man of the theatre, Grumpy, with whom audiences all over America fell in love a few years back, was the charm of the very great actor who played the part—Cyril Maude. And all the charm of the man himself, and the parts he has played, is to be found in the book he has written out of his life. This is quite such an autobiography as might have been expected from Mr. Maude.

Octavo, 350 pages, illustrated, Price $4.00

MY GAMBLE WITH LIFE

By THE EARL OF ROSSLYN

This is not the autobiography of an 18th century gallant, sealed till now in the vault of a manor house—it is the story of a man now living who, having lost all, has nothing more to lose—hence he writes with utter candor. Gambler, bankrupt horse breeder and racer, a misanthrope of aristocracy and a Don Juan of English sporting society, his book is the racy, pungent record of a life brilliantly reckless, and colored vividly with indulgences.

LETTERS OF PONTIUS PILATE

Edited by W. P. CROZIER

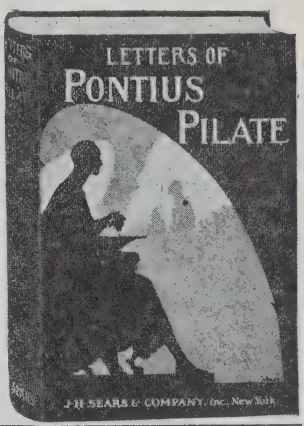
Written during his Governorship in Judea to His Friend Seneca in Rome



This book describes the times of Jesus of Nazareth and some of the principal events in his life from a new viewpoint — that of the Roman Governor. In these dealing with the Jews.

There is a fine picture of Jesus here, written with restraint and feeling, reverent and absorbingly interesting. This is a book of note, incidently a book of considerable charm and attraction.

THE MEDICINE MAN

A Doctor's Autobiography

By* E. C. DUDLEY, M.D., LL.D.

This is the autobiography of one of the leading medical men of our day. This volume affords a vivid, dramatic account of the busy full life of a doctor who grew abreast of the enormous advancement made in his profession. During the fifty years of his practice, greater progress was made in medicine and surgery than in all preceding medical history. This book, therefore, may be regarded as an account of this unprecedented period.

EVERYBODY'S BISHOP

The Life and Times of the Rt. Rev. Samuel Fallows, D.D.

By* ALICE KATHARINE FALLOWS

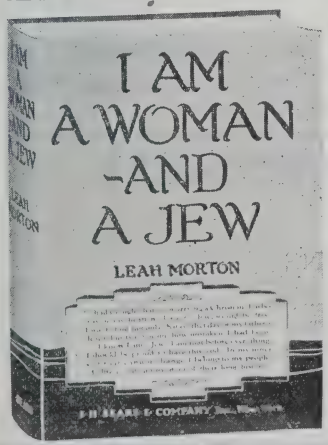
Samuel Fallows, Chicago's beloved Bishop, healed the sick, was President of a College, invented Bishop's Beer and ran a temperance saloon. His biography might even be called a history of the building up of Chicago and the Middle West, so prominent a part did he play in every important happening during the last half of the 19th Century.

Large octavo, 461 pages, illustrated, Price $5.00



I AM A WOMAN—AND A JEW

By* LEAH MORTON

This is a story written by a woman who reveals with utter sincerity her intense experiences. A pioneer among women in business, she found prejudices toward her sex in the business world. Because she was a Jew, she was hampered in her earning power and in her progress. She found in her social life, in her mating, and in her desires for her children, great gulfs between Jew and Gentile.

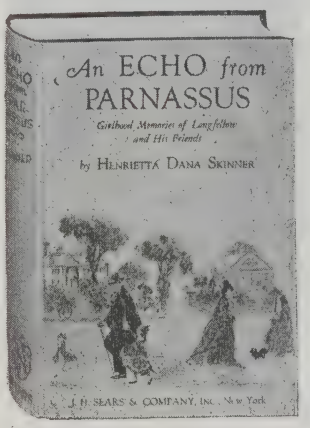
AN ECHO FROM PARNASSUS

Girlhood Memories of Longfellow and His Friends

By HENRIETTA DANA SKINNER



The author is the daughter of Richard Henry Dana, who wrote that famous sea classic, "Two Years Before the Mast." She attended school in Cambridge at the house of Longfellow with the poet's children. She paints a delightful picture of the golden days of American literature, the days of Longfellow, Lowell, Emerson, Holmes and Whittier. This charming book is freighted with rare anecdote of the literary great by one who knew them first hand. Her warm, rich and pointed recollections make this book a unique contribution to American letters.

DIPLOMACY AND FOREIGN COURTS

By MERIEL BUCHANAN

This is the story of the social and political life of a diplomat and his family in European courts—Paris, Rome, Vienna, Constantinople, The Hague, St. Petersburg and other capitals—by the daughter of the distinguished British Ambassador, Sir George Buchanan. SOME LEFT-HANDED MARRIAGES OF ROYALTY

By EDMUND B. D'AUVERGNE

It is most interesting to read of the mixing of blue blood and red, of Royalty marrying commonor. These unions have kindled fires of intrigue, feuds and even wars. BIOGRAPHIES OF CRIME

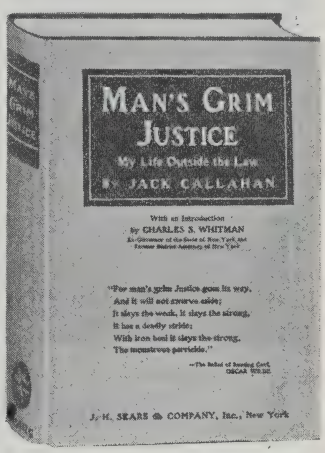
MAN'S GRIM JUSTICE

My Life Outside the Law

By JACK CALLAHAN

With an Introduction by Charles S. Whitman, Ex-Governor of the State of New York and Former District Attorney of New York



This is the autobiography of a noted criminal. Jack Callahan characterizes himself as "a rebel with a streak of Hell." Even the leather and the water cure failed to break him. For thirty years he showed a zest and industry as he piled crime upon crime that leaves the reader amazed even to read about it. This book is the psychology, the thoughts and viewpoints of a man who has run the entire gamut of criminality.

LADIES OF THE UNDERWORLD

Tales of the Beautiful and the Damned

By NETLEY LUCAS

When the feminine takes it in her mind to be bad, she is very bad. But in her wickedness, in her psychology, in her criminal plottings, she is always fascinating. This is a piquant, racy story of some of the famous present-day women crooks, who are practicing their nefarious trades in London, Paris, New York, Monte Carlo, Buenos Aires, Chicago, Palm Beach, on the broad Atlantic, and in other centers.
